A Tragedy Among the Storks.

Strasbourg harbors every summer have some dozen couples of storks, who, from their favorite seats on the highest chimneys, command an extensive view of the surrounding expanse of fields and meadows watered by the tributaries of the neighboring Rhine. by the tributaries of the neighboring Rhine. These moist and inviting plains are the stock's pasturage ground, offering a rich banquet to their hungry guests. But let me sketch out for you a drama which was encated before my very eyes in Stock land. I was frequently in the habit of ascending the cathedral tower to enjoy the noble panorama unrolled before me, to draw what pleases me, to penetrate the lesser and remoter beauties of the scene by aid of the telescope. It was the time of the year when the long beauties of the scene by aid of the telescope. It was the time of the year when the long procession of storks arrived to take up their residence for the summer. They soon began to pay their annual court; each sought a mate, and the new couples paired off for the season. But there was one unlucky suitor, who, in spite of all his exertions and attentions, failed to win the favor of another. The young couple lived happily in their nest, while the discarded rival, now a moody bachelor, sat gloomy and sad, with neck withdrawn, one leg in air, and upon a neighboring chimney-pot, from whence he datted boring chimney-pot, from whence he datted glances of e vy and jealous hate at the loving pair below. The misanthropic young grumbler nursed his revenge to keep it warm, and heated the murderous fancies that ever and anon rose within his dark and longsome breast. Soon four eyes were lying lonesome breast. Soon four eggs were lying in the family nest. I saw with what pains and patience the mother broaded over the new arrivals, pecking at them with her long bill, when the young progeny gave signs of activity, and began to knock hard at the portals of life. The former rival sat also ever and ever in the same place, but ever dreary and lonesome, and brooding over his growing hate. One day the parents had both left their home in search for food; I was at my usual station, and free to observe the active life of the little ones down below, when all at once I saw a stork alight upon the nest, and plunge its murderous bill into the tender flesh of the poor defenseless younglings. The blood spurted out and deluged the beds of the victims in their own gore; the poor little things drooped their heads, and died with severally a strongle. Although my class with scarcely a struggle. Although my glass brought the whole details of the scene vividly before the eye, I was yet too far off vividly before the eye, I was yet too far off to come to the rescue, or even to frighten away the murderer. After the completion of the bloody work the stork flew away, and betook himself again to his lonely post upon the chimney. It was the despised rival, who had waited long and patiently for the opportune absence of the parents, and thus revenged the slight from which he had suffered so much.

Not long afterwards the mother returned, and, while fluttering over the nest, saw her little ones lying dead within. She raised a shrill cry of pain and despair, and then darted off in quick flight to seek her mate. They were soon both of them sitting upon the edge of the nest, when they indulged in an unsultraphle, show of crief and while she have found and the statement of the nest while she have found and the statement of the state an unutterable show of grief, and, while gould raising the lifeless bodies with their beaks, uttered a dull low moaning, which beaks, uttered a dull low moaning, which contrasted painfully with the joyous rattling and clitter-clatter, once so expressive of their happiness. But this did not last long—it was no time yet for sorrow. Suddenly they fly up vertically into the air till they have attained a great height, when they stop, and with one fell swoop pounce down upon the devoted head of the murderer sitting below. My eyes alone were witnesses of the deed he had committed, but their instincts at once had enabled them to divine the true perpehe had committed, but their instincts at once had enabled them to divine the true perpetrator. A terrible conflict began; bills were used alike as spears for thrusting, or as swords for cutting and slashing; the claws sunk deeply into the seeh; and the blows of the broad heavy wings sounded far and wide, making the welkin ring. Feathers flew around in clouds. The combatants now stormed into the air, as driven before a whirlwind—now they sank, still fighting upon the neighboring roofs. This continued for a long time, until at last the murderer took to flight, his pursuers after him, and they vanished from my view. He was doubtless slain at last, for I never saw him again on his old-accustomed chimney. Many hundred persons below in the streets remained spectators of the struggle in mid-air, though none tors of the struggle in mid-air, though none but myself was aware of the direful springs of the dreadful war.—Letter by Herr Piton to Dr. Masius, author of "Naturstudien."

FRIGHTFUL DEATH THROUGH CRINOLINE. On Wednesday evening Mr. Langham, Deputy Coroner for Westminster, held an inquest at the Westminster Hospital upon the body of Mary Anne Winterbotham, 22, a servant in the employ of Dr. Allen, 35, Great Dartford street, who died from the effects of frightful injuries occasioned by her clothes catching fire on last Friday. The particulars of the lamentable accident have already appeared in our columns. Dr. Allen deposed that the deceased told him that she got a shovel foll of burning coals to light the drawing room fire, and placed it on the ground, and while she stooped to get wood from a cupboard she thought her dress must have swept over the coals and caught fire. She wore a cane crincline. The jury returned a verdict that deceased died from being accidentally burned, and they added that they inquest at the Westminster Hospital upon ed a verdict that deceased died from being accidentally burned, and they added that they could not separate without expressing their horrow and disgust at persons whose household duties require them to do with fre persisting in the use of crinoline, and they expressed a hope that the present one might of the series a warning. The Corner said that it act as a warning. The Coroner said that it was not the first accident of the kind that came under his own observation, and he quite concurred in the opinion of the jury.-

RATES OF OCEAN PASSAGE.—The prices of passage on the steamers of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, through to New York from San Francisco, are as follows :-First cabin, deck room, $258 50, main deck room, $233 25; second cabin, $180 75; and steerage, $128 75. To go to New York around Cape Horn in a clipper ship, first cabin costs about $150, more or less, according to accommodations, style of living, etc. A cabin passage to China costs from seventy-five to one hundred and twenty-five dollars; to Australia, about the same; and to the Sandwich Islands from forty to sixty dollars, A cabin passage to England costs about $150.

PROPOSED INVASION OF HYDE PARK .- A meeting was held lately in the Vestry Hall, Harrow-road, to promote a project, some time since set on foot, for invading Hyde-park, since set on toot, for invading Hyde-park, by running through it an open public road. Bayswater cannot exist, it seems, without a right of way to Kensington. The inhabitants want a road above or below the earth, tants want a road above or below the earth, and to get it are quite willing to cutup Kensington gardens to effect their object. The meeting resolved that the road was wanted for traffic, and it was determined that a depunation should wait on Mr. Cowper to get his sanction and support.

BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, AND ULCERS BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, AND ULCERS.—
The treatment erroneously pursued in these cases, is to drive the disease inwards, thus making matters far worse than by allowing it to take its natural course, as it only breaks out elsewhere with an aspect ten times more dreadful than before. Holloway's celebrated Ointment and Pills, however, act in conjunction, the one internally and the other externally, and by the conjunction of these two inestimable specifies, all descriptions of external diseases are speedily and rapidally removed, even when all other means fail.

feel very much as they would after the death of a sick man, over whom an uninterrupted watch had been kept up night and day for seven months. They feel that the Legislature is out of its sufferings-free for a brief period at least-and that the continuous watch that has been kept upon it from fear of its hatching some extraordinary measure like the Jury Bill, is now unnecessary, as the Legislature during recess can do neither harm nor good. Perhaps there never was a more slim opening or closing of a legislative session in this Colony than that which occurred yesterday. We are that the descend three members of the duchy in the year ending 31st December, 1859, and the there we have seen on the subject, it appears that the gross receipts of the duchy in the year ending 31st December, 1859, and the descendent of the duchy in the year ending 31st December, 1859, and the descendent of the duchy in the year ending 31st December, 1859, and the descendent of the duchy in the year ending 31st December, 1859, and the ducky in the year ending 31st December, 1859, and the ducky of the ducky o assured that beyond three members of the Council and eight or ten members of the Assembly with the clerks of both branches, there was no one present, except two strangers in the lobby and three in the gallery. Such a wan! of interest must be anything but exhilirating to Gov. Douglas, and certainly is not at all flattering to the Assembly. When only five spectators can be scared up to grace what in other colonies is regarded as the time for a grand state display, it indicates next to a total want of respect; and wherever such a feeling generally prevails it must indicate something radically wrong somewhere in our polity. It is certainly a state of feeling such as no real patriot can desire, for whatever legitimate differences of opinion may exist in politics, still all have a common interest at stake in keeping up a high degree of respect for those in authority—at least on what may be properly designated as state occasions. As a matter of course, the closing speech is but an echo of what has been done during the session-or of the measures which, from the Government point of view, give character to the session-besides State thanks for "great attention" (?) to the public service, and a passing remark on the state of the country, both the latter allusions sounding like a sarcasm. If we are to follow the judgment of His Excellency, the chief measures of the third session were the Alien Bills, steam subsidy, and harbor improvement. The last, however, does not properly belong to this session, as the Harbor Improvement Bill was passed a year ago, nearly, but did not receive the Governor's assent till some time last July or August. The Alien Bills were certainly much wanted, and the Assembly did really some good; yet it is doubted in many quarters well worthy of consideration whether greater privileges in the Naturalization Law would not have been more conducive to the naturalization of aliens. The substantial privilege conceded to aliens of holding land, whether naturalized or not, is certainly a good measure — one long wanted. The steam subsidy is a measure on which considerable difference of opinion exists; but it is due to the originators of the subsidy to say that it was done with the best object in view. At the time it was originated, times were unusually dull-duller, perhaps, than at any previous season; there was no immigration nor prospect of any. Cariboo then was not a certainty. Some effort had to be made in order, if possible, to introduce population. A channel had to be opened up for people to come. If any fault can be found with the managers of that measure, (with the exception of making a bargain to subsidize steamers before the Supply Bill was law,) it was in pressing it through after there was a comparative certainty that a large immigration would visit us in the Spring. When the Supply Bill was laid over till January without passing, there might have been grounds at that time to withhold the subsidy. But, even then, the fear of Salmon River had its influence erable body of the people of the country. At the time the subsidy was put in the Estimates it was not only necessary but so were great exertions in drumming up immigration also. By the by, the diffusion of information is resolution were unanimously adopted not touched upon in the Speech. This was a corollary of the subsidy originally. We observe that the Bankruptcy Bill, a very voluminous affair, is not mentioned-except under a general head of law reform. With all its defects it will probably do good; but after it works a year the public will be better able to form a correct judgment on its merits. As this measure was mentioned in the opening Speech in June, it may be set down as one Government promise fulfilled.

Marriage of the Prince of Wales.

Prorogation of the Legislature.

Yesterday af two o'clock the third session of the Legislature was closed, and stands prorogued till the 11th of March. The Legislature having met on June 26, has consequently been in session seven months and nine days. This long period has hung like the nightmare over the members, and the rising of the Legislature causes a general sense of relief. Everybody feels relieved—feel very much as they would after the country in disputes, or even wars, respecting the Danish succession, as similar alliances have done in times of old. But whenever and whomsoever his Royal Highness does marry, we take it for granted that there will be no extraordinary pull on the public purse on the occasion, because the bridegroun either is, or ought to be, amply provided for by the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, which, only diminished by the cost of his maintenance and education have been asmaintenance and education, have been ac no the year ending 31st December, 1859, were £63,704 12s. 10½d.; that the disbursements under various heads amounted to £12,927 10s 3d;; and that the sum of £40,785 was paid over to the trustees and treasurer of his Royal Highness, to his Royal Highness' use, leaving a balance of £9,992 2s. 7½d. at his banker's. Now, an income of £40,000 a year for weathy years amounts to £40,000 a year for twenty years amounts to £800,000; and supposing that the maintenance and education of the Prince Duke from the time he was a baby in arms down to the present day has cost his royal parents—who are the trustees—£100,000, there ought to be something like £700,000 invested for to be something like £700,000 invested for his benefit somewhere. It what ought to be is, the royal and liberal people of England may rejoice, therefore, in the prospect of the approaching happiness of their future morarch without apprehension of a demand for dowry or appanage such as is, it would appear, indispensable in the case of other members of the royal family.—London Financial Reporter. nancial Reporter.

Although the fame of this renowned invigorant rests mainly on its aetonishing cures of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and intestinal disorders, it is equally efficacious in nervous complaints. Thousands of ladies resort to it as a remedy for hysteria, fluttering of the heart, nervous headache, vertigo, general debility and all peculiar disturbances and derangements to which, as a sex, they are subject. The Gambling Hell. EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST:-Please accept my thanks and those of numerous law-abiding citizens for the insertion of my poor scrawl on the subject of the Faro Bank lately opened in this city. A very general feeling of surprise was manifested by the public to-day how so great an iniquity had been allowed to continue in the very heart of the community for four weeks without a word being urged in favor of its suppression. When I penned the communication I really despaired doing any good. I feared you would not put it in. Thank you, my fears were not verified. The letter duly appeared, and all this day considerable of a flutter was manifested among the the names of six more non-professional gamblers who have been among the constant feeders of this Royal Bengal Tiger and the names of several more of the regular hangers-on or "ropes." These names I enclose for your edification; do with them as you choose. Publish or burn 'em up—any way will suit me; but rest assured I have sent you naught but truth. I heard a great many strange statements yesterday from one and another of the "sports,"-but the strangest of all was that of the "sports,"—but the strangest of all was that the force had been bribed not to interfere with the game. A boast to that effect is freely made within the "charmed circle" and I give you it for what you think it worth. It is not a little strange that there has been no movement made by the authorities to find out this gamblers' nest; and I can't help thinking that if they were half as vigilant in ferreting out this case as they are in earling helpless drunkards to the station-house, the present blot which has tarnished the fair fame of our town, and taken away—at least for a time—its reputation for morality and virtue, would not have fallen on us. I do not wish to be understood a bringing charges of corruption and bribery against the Police. I merely state what I hear, reserving, as the result of future investigations, my opinion on the matter. We are passing under a dark cloud just now, Mr. Editor, but, with your kind assitiance, I shall continue the war until the evil is either put down entirely or greatly abated.

I am rejoiced to inform you that several of the victims have declared their intention to feed the tiger no more. They have suffered greatly, and assert openly that they have been "hogged." Let them thank you, sir, that the scales have at last fallen from their eyes and that they see as other men the fearful danger through which they have justed the Colonist, prove the means of detering them from future departures from the path of prudence.

I hear the the next steamer will bring us some "the Police were all right," In other words, that I hear that the next steamer will bring us some more sporting gents, fully prepared to open business at an hour's notice. I shall watch them if they come and counter them if possible. Yours, respectfully, CARIBOOITE.

House of Assembly.

Monday, February 3, 1862.

Monday, February 3, 1862.

At precisely two o'clock yesterday afternoon, His Excellency Governor Douglas, attended by the members of the Legislative Council, entered the House of Assembly.

A message from His Excellency approving of the Trades Licenses' Amendment Act; Extension of Limitation of Foreign Actions' Act; Act to Prevent Swine and Goats from running at large. Bankruptcy Act, 1862, was read.

PROBOGATION.

PROBOGATION.

At the conclusion of the reading of the message,
His Excellency addressed the two Houses as fol-lows:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Counand Gentlemen of the Legislative As-cit, and Gentlemen of the Legislative As-sembly:

I desire to convey to you my warmest acknowledgements for the great attention with which you have applied yourselves to the performance of your public duties durthe session of Parliament now about to

The important measures which you have passed, and which have been sanctioned since the meeting of the present Parliament, for the security and relief of aliens—for establishing direct steam communication establishing direct steam communication with the port of San Francisco, and for deepning and improving the harbor of Victoria—cannot fail to be conducive to the general welfare and to the substantial benefit of the Colony. You have also passed various measures of law reform, which, from their value and importance, demand special ac-knowledgement.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly :

I thank you for the supplies which you have voted for the public service of the year 1861, and I assure you that in the expenditure of those supplies it will be found that the strictest regard has been paid to economy, and to the purposes for which you intended them. intended them.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I am happy to learn that the general interests of the Colony remain in a sound and satisfactory state, and that there is every reason to look forward with confidence to a Prosperous future.

I now prorogue this Parliament.

At the conclusion of His Excellency's Speech, Chief Justice Cameron prorogued the House till Tuesday, the 11th day of March.

ing Charles Coutts, accused of stabbing Vincent Silcock, was brought before Mr. Pemberton in the Police Court for examination. Officer McGee, who made the arrest, found both men fighting in Teutonia Hall, Government street. The complainant (Silcock) who appeared with his arm bandaged up, said that Coutts commenced the difficulty and finally stabbed him in his arm with a sheath-knife. Other witnesses were called, who proved that Silcock struck first; that Coutts backed down and warned the complainant to keep off before he struck him with the knife. The magistrate accordingly dismissed the charge against Coutts, and placed Silcock on trial for assault, and after hearing Coutts' evidence fined Silcock 50s., remarking, that although the court discountenanced the use of weapons, still there were times when men must protect themselves, and Coutts was evidently doing so when he stabbed his antagonist.

BEATING AN INDIAN .- A man was arrested last evening on a warrant which charged him with badly beating an Indian.

SNOWBALLING .- Great complaint is made by many storekeepers on Yates street that snowballing parties of men and boys daily fill their places of business with snow, to the serious injury of their business and stocks. "A little nonsense now then," etc., is all very fine; but too much of it is not to be endured. We admit that we like to see people snowballing each other, and we also like to take a hand in the fun occasionally ourselves. A good bout with snowballs, where the sport is not all one side, is health-giving and spirit-raising, and is the best remedy for the "blues," dyspepsia and ill temper that we know of. But where the parties engaging in the fun do so at the expense and injury of others, if "sports." There was plenty of buzzing around to find out who "Caribooite" was, but they all when requested, they should be prosecuted. got on the wrong scent, and, thanks to the admirable manner in which you worked it, I was not out of the stores, and don't pelt anybody exert a suspected. This morning I obtained court he has a fair show to pay you back cept he has a fair show to pay you back with interest. By following this rule you may save yourselves both trouble and expense, as we have heard several of the tradesmen threaten to make complaint to the Police if the present system is continued.

SUPPOSED DISHONEST WRECKERS .- At 9 o'clock on Sunday night, policeman Blake arrested two men, who gave their names as James Whiffles and Andrew Lee, on suspicion of having stolen a quantity of boots, blankets, two firkins of butter, a large boat, a ship's compass, and various other articles found in their possession. The prisoners had offered a dozen pairs of the boots to a Johnson street storckeeper at fifty cents per pair. The prisoner Whiffles stated in the Police Court yesterday that his companion and himself belonged to the American ship

The tussle will probably put an end to the suit.

DISCHARGE OF THE DESPERADO .-- Wm. Simpson, the little old man committed for the henious offence of discharging a volley of snow-balls at a person passing by the corner of Yates street and Waddington alley, on Saturday, was yesterday liberated by the Police Magistrate, with a caution not to snow-ball strangers in future.

Assault.-E. Mallandaine was yesterday summoned to appear before the Magistrate to-morrow, to answer a charge of assault preferred against him by E. C. Waddington. A misunderstanding with regard to the Rifle Corps gave rise to the difficulty.

ORDERED TO FIND SURETIES .- Henry Harvey, found prowling about the Police Judge's room on Saturday last, was yesterday ordered to find security to be of good behavior for six months -- failing in which he will have to vegetate a while in prison.

About 70 young hopefuls were present and seemed to enjoy themselves very much and to ap preciate the kindness of their worthy patron and patroness, and formed one of the most interesting juvenile parties it has been our pleasure to witness here or elsewhere. After the tables were elseared Dr. Benson exhibited to the wondering gase of the youngsters the manifold scenes-udiferous and otherwise—of his large magic lantern. Several of its views being suggestive, instructive and interesting illustrations to the youthful mind. The law J. B. German Sunday Amusements

The London Saturday Review makes merry over the popular amusements of Germany. It savs:

Let any one try, and honestly state his feelings after he has passed the third hour of the third evening at a beer-garden, and he will acknowledge that he feels a peculiar and utter sensation of weariness which is unknown except on the continent. But no one can doubt that the Germans are thoroughly happy. This is shown not only by their air of gentle content, but by the extra-ordinary importance they attach in common conversation to what we should think the most insignificant occurrences. Such an event as a brewery giving its grand yearly festival, or new cellars being inaugurated hy a treat to the workmen, is discussed with the strangest outpourings of triumph, plea-sure and pride. Long practice, too, or he-reditary taste enables the Germans to take more of these pleasures than English people can do.

We speak of a German spending seven or eight hours a day in smoking and drinking as a curious trait of character, as an odd national custom, as a habit of an animal different to ourselves; but why on earth does not all this beer and smoking make Germans bilious? A German considers that, on busy days, he must limit himself to about twelve or fourteen cigars, while on holidays on busy days, he must limit himself to about twelve or fourteen eigars, while on holidays he takes from twenty to twenty-five. Brewers alone could calculate how much beer would be in proportion. We should like to know why this does not make Germans ill, particularly as they take no exercise except a little swimming. However that may be, the fact remains. The Germans can go on with their amusements, and find a contunual relish in them. No wonder that this provokes the investigation of foreigners. Surely a people that can get so much amusement a people that can get so much amusement must be happy, and have much to teach the rest of the world in the art of living.

The theatrical amosements are thus de-

They will doubtless float off with the high tide this evening. The cargo of the Princess Royal is the most valuable ever brought to this Colony.

SHART TUSSLE.—Two litigants, who had a suit pending in the Summary Court, while returning across James' Bay Bridge, at one chorus was equally amused, and at one mo-ment the funny man was literally in possession of the whole house, and separated a laughing audience before him from a laughing audience behind him. This may show that the Viennese are very happy, and are easily amused, and people who behave in a more reserved and decorous way may really have to regret their supposed superiority.

Meakness and Debility.

In cases of debility, languor, and nervousness generated by excess of any kind, whether mental or physical, the effect of these l'ills is in the highest degree bracing, renovating and restorative. They drive from the system the morbid cause of disease; re-establish the digestion, regulate all the secretions, brace the nervous system, raise the patient's spirits, and bring back the frame to its pristine health and vigor. They increase the appetite, while they secure periest Eigestion to all ordinary food, and release the invalid from restraint in diet.

It is not generally known, but such is the fact, that children require medicine oftener than their parents, Three-fourths of the children die before they attain the age of eight years. Let mothers, then, be wise, and give to their children small doses of these invaluable Pills once or twice every week, in such quantity as may act gently upon the system twice in the twenty-four hours. For infants, a Pill may be crushed and given as a powder in a little water. The gross humors that are constantly floating about in the blood of children, the foretunners of so many complaints, will thus be expelled, and the lives of thousands saved and preserved to their parents.
